Building upon the GeoElections implementation the staff has recently completed, citizens of all ages will have access to elections data through interactive maps. Director Ginger Price said, "The ability to introduce elections information and lessons into the classrooms over the web through interactive maps is very exciting. Our Putnam County Board of Elections is the first in the state to do this for citizens of all ages." She added, "We do not send out individual sample ballots in Ohio.

Offering ballots specific to the household on the web will allow our voters to be better informed on election day. Taking less time to cast their ballots, the lines at the polling places should be shorter."
